

Felicia Lee

Still Photographer

Felicia Lee was born and raised in Draper, UT. She has had a strong passion for photography since a young age, participating in school newspapers and yearbooks throughout high school and middle school. She attended college at Brigham Young University and received a degree in Social Cultural Anthropology in 2013. She has spent time living with and photographing various different cultures. She loves people and story telling, which is what draws her to many different fields, including film. The independent film Missed Connections was her first experience with film and unit stills photography.
